TEKST 2

Calmer Chameleons

Customs officers at Heathrow airport were shocked when they discovered a smuggled shipment of 42 wild chameleons. The reptiles, which can change their skin colour to match their surroundings, were heading for illegal pet trade.

They could have been sold for more than £100 each. The rescued animals were handed to Newquay Zoo. "Chameleons are tricky to look after and they don't like changes," says zoo keeper Wendy Winstanley.

"We've made sure that they've got plenty of water and food and they've started to fill out. They now look much more alert and colourful."

Wat wordt er verteld over een lading kameleons die de douane in Heathrow heeft ontdekt?

- A Een groot deel ervan bleek te zijn overleden tijdens de vlucht.
- B Na verzorging zijn ze doorverkocht aan dierenwinkels.
- C Ze zijn naar een dierentuin gebracht en worden daar verzorgd.

TEKST 3

Strange but true!

A bear was bought from a Russian circus by a tourist agent after he was asked to provide an American visitor with a "wild bear hunt". The bear was released into Moscow's Perdelkino Forest and the tourist got ready to hunt him down. As the hunter closed in on his prey, a postman passed by on his bike, saw the bear and tumbled off in surprise. Recalling his Big Top training, the bear grabbed the bike and pedalled off! The American later sued the tourist agent for fraud!

Hoe zag de jager dat hij niet met een wilde beer te maken had?

- A De beer bleek te kunnen fietsen.
- B De beer liep niet weg voor de jager.
- C De beer liet zich aaien door een voorbijganger.
- D De beer viel de postbode niet aan.
